

Police Academy ScholarS (PASS)

Are you ready to become part of an elite and exclusive program at Monroe College? The Police Academy ScholarS (PASS) program is a two-year preparatory program designed to provide students at the Monroe College School of Criminal Justice with the skills and mentorship to fully prepare them to enter a police academy and ultimately become police officers. The PASS program is open to incoming students with a strong interest in law enforcement and policing.

Why choose PASS?

- All PASS students are placed in cohorts similar to the squads in the NYPD Police Academy, led by a faculty mentor with years of experience in law enforcement. Students attend all workshops together, enabling them to develop a cohesive team, form study groups for their courses, and make lasting friendships.
- The PASS program consists of hands-on tactical and physical training along with small group workshops. The workshops focus on written test prep, preparation for police academy subjects, the hiring process, physical training and workouts, and police tactics. Additionally, off campus field trips will be part of the learning curriculum
- PASS students have the opportunity to connect to a number of mentors and instructors within the Criminal Justice System, from active and retired NYPD detectives and supervisors to former prosecutors and defense attorneys. This unique group of experts will provide the tools and insight necessary to become a police officer.
- PASS students can access all the benefits of the School of Criminal Justice, including the newly installed Law Enforcement Training Simulator (LETS). The LETS technology can be used to test appropriate use of force, accuracy and response time through shooting drills and scenarios.

Admissions Requirements

Students will apply for the PASS program alongside their initial Monroe College application. Considerations for admission into the program will include a review of academic records, disciplinary record, a background check, and high school attendance records.
