Obtain a Professional Letter of Authentication: Learning Disabled students can submit a High School Individual Educational Plan (IEP and all accompany documents) on letterhead paper or other appropriate professional documentation by a qualified licensed practitioner. An IEP does not specifically satisfy all requirements of the student to document the need for reasonable accommodation. The college reserves the right to obtain or require additional information as may be required to document specific need. All other submissions are to be completed on letterhead paper by a physician, neuropsychologist, psychologist, audiologist or psychiatrist. The letter must certify and provide detailed documentation of how this individual's disability includes functional limitations as they relate to college level courses of study. The authentication letter will also require the signature, phone of the appropriate professional and clear recommendations for services/accommodations to improve the student's performance.
